Notes on Cultural Pride

This section includes conversations about the cultural pride of the Punjabi-Sikh community. Through exploration of language rights, Hockey Night in Canada and community service- students will see contemporary examples of the richness of the Punjabi-Sikh community. Students will engage with the historical thinking concept of Historical Significance and Evidence.

Question: How does language contribute to one's identity?

Opening questions: What is the importance of maintaining one's heritage/ethnic language and their cultural practices? What languages do you speak? What role do you think language plays in forming one's identity? Why is language important?

Video | Learning Punjabi Language in Canada

- What stood out for you in the video? What role do you think speaking Punjabi plays in the lives of the individuals in the videos? Why is being able to speak Punjabi important to them?
- Why did the group advocate for Punjabi to be an official second language to be taught in BC? What about other languages?
- Despite the policy changes, what kind of challenges did the group face in getting the language courses to be implemented in schools?
- At one point (7:30), Sadhu Binning discuses that one of the schools wouldn't allow anyone who came from a Punjabi background to take the Punjabi class- why do you think that was? What impact would that have on the Punjabi students in the school? Discuss your opinion on this school's policy.

Question: How does language contribute to levels of community?

- Have students brainstorm/share the languages spoken from the classroom community.
- Share the census data from 2016 on this data table from all of Canada.
  - o Have students make observations and create questions regarding the data.

What community interactions have you had with the Punjabi-Sikh community? (might be bhangra performances, music videos, concerts, weddings, Nagar Kirtan, melas, et.)

- What role do these events play in maintaining their cultural identity and building community?
- Punjabi Mela: A Festival of Colours, Diversity and Friendship here.
- Surrey to host one of the world's biggest Vaisakhi parades here.
- Five things you need to know about Vaisakhi here.

The community advocated for Punjabi to be offered in public schools in BC and it has been offered at some schools along with other languages (Mandarin, Japanese, German and Spanish). Government Announcement of this initiative here.

- What are the benefits of having a multilingual society?
- Would this language policy exist today had the different communities not advocated for their languages to be taught within BC schools?
- Ask students if they have ever heard of Hockey Night In Canada
  - What comes to mind?
  - o Perhaps hook them with the iconic song: Access here.
  - o How does Hockey Night in Canada connect to Canadian identity?
- Aske students if they have ever heard of Hockey Nigh in Canada: Punjab Edition?
- Read as a class (start together, then move to reading it individually) the story of how Hockey Night in Canada: Punjabi Edition came to exist, evolved and how language played an important role in reaching out to the diverse Punjabi community. Use the graphic organizer below to track the social, political, economic, technological, and cultural aspects of this initiative.

- At the end of the reading, have students share out important details that they learned, found significant
- Have students go back over the reading, to find a powerful phrase or sentence that stands out to themhave students share out.
- Here are some key quotes, excerpts that could be further discussed as a class:
  - "Of course, the diversity extended beyond simply the presence or absence of facial hair. "there are different types of Punjabi speakers," Janda explains. "I'll drop a Drake reference and Harp (Pandher) will come in with a Punjabi folk reference. He's hitting a certain population, I'm hitting a certain population."
  - o "[It's framed as] 'The Punjabi show represents diversity of Canada,' which is true. But it actually represents the diversity within the Punjabi community. You can be a Hindu Punjabi, you can be Sikh Punjabi, you can be Muslim Punjabi, you can speak Urdu, you can be a Pakistani Punjabi. When we were thinking about this show, we wanted to appeal to as many people as possible."
  - "At the core of these new concerns was a key distinction: Hockey Night Punjabi's south-of-the-border rise earned incredible attention but whether it was grounded in genuine appreciation or in something else, something less celebratory, wasn't clear. And so, even with all the accolades, there's still something nagging at the back of Sekhon's mind. "Let's face it, the Bonino thing was a great story it was fun," the producer says. "But you tell me, doesn't part of you sit there and analyze the situation and think, "Yeah it was a really energetic, passionate goal call but is it just a passionate energy that had people excited? Or is it kind of 'Look what that ethnic dude's doing? How many people out there were saying 'That was so hilarious' as opposed to 'We love the energy'?".

- Have students add to the SPETC chart as they watch the video

Formative Check-in

- Return to the unit question: How does language contribute to levels of community?
  - o Based on the story of Hockey Night in Canada: Punjab Edition, how did the Punjabi language contribute to:

| Family            | Local communities             | The diverse Punjabi community |
|-------------------|-------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| National (Canada) | International (North America) |                               |

- o How did the Punjabi language include more people in 'feeling Canadian'?
- o How does this story disprove stereotypes?

Reflection

First Peoples Principles of Learning - Learning ultimately supports the well-being of the self, the family, the community, the land, the spirits, and the ancestors.

Spend time connecting back to the FPPL with students. Suggestions of possible reflection questions could be:

How does understanding others in your community benefit you?

What communities do you belong to?

How does connection with community impact our choices?
